3. Prioritizing Requirements. New requirements, including defects identified as part of your user testing activities, are prioritized by your project stakeholders and added to the stack in the appropriate place. Your project stakeholders have the right to define new requirements, change their minds about existing requirements, and even reprioritize requirements as they see fit.

There has been a lot of debates around when to use stored procedures vs. raw sql. Many purists are vehemently on one side of the fence or the other. Strangely people talk about views to a lesser extent. Stored functions and triggers are almost nonexistent in these debates. In this article we'll try to provide a non-biased outline of the benefits and pitfalls of each approach.

Choice Between Stored Procedures, Functions, Views

CALLAHAM VIRTUAL POP-IN ARM Available in three lengths, Callaham's pop-in arm has a reduced threaded length as compared to traditional arms (see photo above) It is therefore unthreaded where it bears against the Delrin bushing, and this allows you to push it in, then spin it once or twice to engage a thread or two.
